TURNING POINT

Opportunities for Supporting Children and Young People for Improved Recovery

Clare Kelly Service Head Local Relationships, partnerships and Influencing

Opportunities

1) Creating safe environments for children and young people to speak about their experiences

2) Tailoring communication to support younger victims and to ensure that they understand all stages of the process

3) Promoting multi-agency collaboration between the police, schools, youth workers and social care to ensure that children and young people are holistically supported

Creating Safe Environments for Children & Young People to Speak About Their Experiences

“Safe Spaces = Safe Disclosures = Better Recovery”

Tailoring Communication So Children Understand Every Stage of the Process

“uncertainty perpetuates trauma. Clear communication and structure designed for children and young people supports recovery”

Promoting Multi-Agency Collaboration for Holistic Support

“No single agency can meet a child’s needs — but together, we can.”

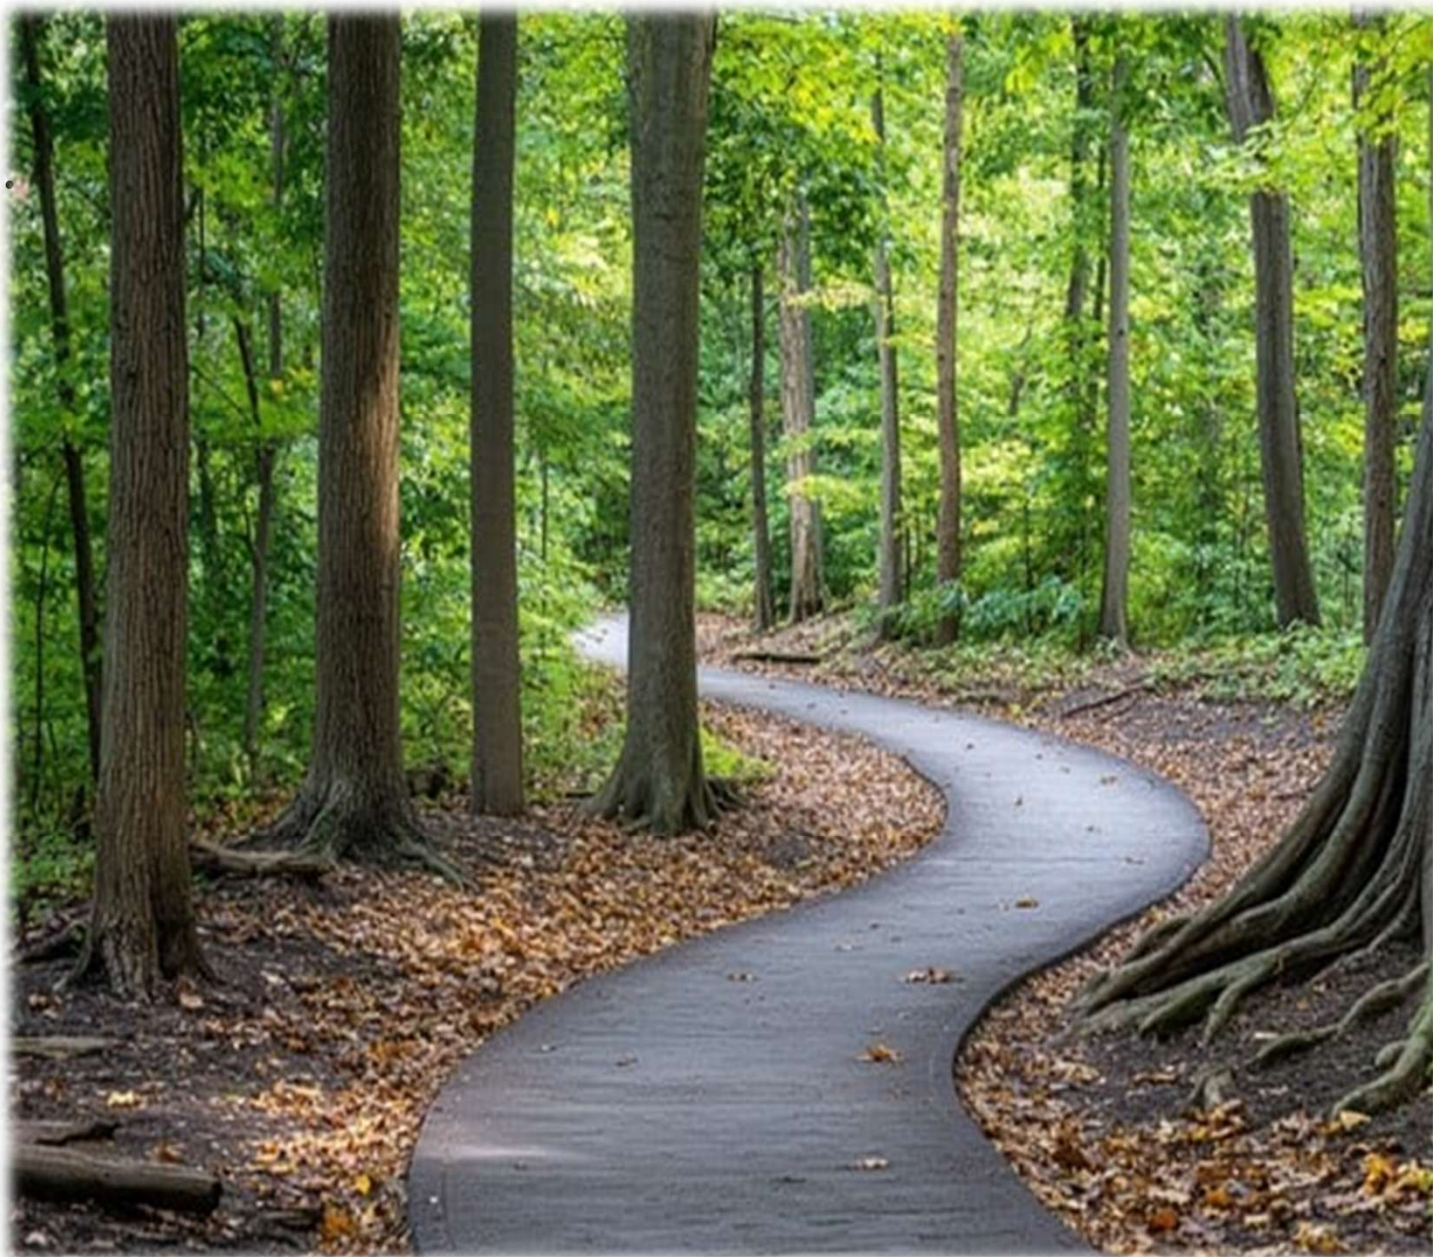
Community Safety Partnership

Close

“Every opportunity we take becomes a turning point for a child.”

We have real momentum:

- New investment in safe, child-centred environments
- Reform of guidance and codes that shape children’s rights
- Increasing recognition that multi-agency collaboration is not a bonus — it’s a baseline



NSPCC

EVERY CHILDHOOD IS WORTH FIGHTING FOR

©NSPCC 2023. National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Registered charity England and Wales 216401, Scotland SC037717 and Jersey 384. Photography by Tom Hull, Harry George Hall, and Adrian James White. Children and adults pictured are models and volunteers. Photography includes a real-life NSPCC Childline counsellor, Sarah Murphy. J2023009.